

Terms and Conditions

By submitting your work to Science for Sport, you affirm that you are the sole owner and author of the entire content and retain 100% ownership of all copyrights, including, but not limited to, both written content and media (e.g. images and videos). You agree that your submission has not been plagiarised in any way, published elsewhere (in print or online), or has been copied from any other original source. Upon signing this document, you also agree that you accept full legal responsibility for any intellectual property/breach of copyright laws which may occur if this work has been copied or plagiarised in any way.

Once a submission has been published on the Science for Sport website (www.scienceforsport.com), Science for Sport owns global rights to the content and it is not to be repurposed or published elsewhere without expressed consent from Science for Sport. You agree that it is Science for Sport's sole decision as to where, when and for what length of time, the submission will appear. You consent that you are not submitting content that contains paid endorsements of any kind (including affiliate marketing).

By submitting a feature for review you agree that all the above is true and correct to the best of your knowledge.

Agreement Confirmation

By signing this agreement, you agree you have followed the Science for Sport article guidelines. In particular, you understand and agree that you have not plagiarised the works of any other content creator and accept full legal responsibility if you do/or have done so.
